

Lirio goes to College (again)!

A Father to the fatherless, a defender of widows, is God in his holy dwelling -Psalm 68:5.

Our ninth college student, Belém Ulloa is certainly an example of this scripture verse. She came to us at the age of seven, abandoned by her father and with a mother with severe emotional problems who was unable to take care of her or her sisters. Her limited goal as a seven year old was to simply get by in elementary school. However, as she learned to accept the love of Jesus and the healing power of the Father's love, Belém began to dream great dreams and excel in school. Belém completed junior high and high school with excellent grades. Through all of this one of her greatest dreams was to go to the United States and learn english. Although this possibility did not seem likely, God had a different idea. A family in Massachusetts invited Belém to join their family for a year, the only catch was she needed to receive a visa. Through much prayer, faith and fasting she sailed through the visa process without a single obstacle.

Our "bilingual genius" returned after her year in Massachusetts and accepted the challenge to work for us while going to school full time at Carl Rogers Institute, one of the most prestigious private colleges in the state of Chihuahua. During her time in the States, Belém earned enough money to finance her first year of college education in Mexico. Belém is definitely a jack-of-all trades, she blesses us with her abilities which include: cooking, driving everyone around Chihuahua, counseling, tutoring, styling hair, etc.etc.etc. She does all of this while balancing the demands of her university education, quite a "juggling act".

God delights in protecting the weak, disadvantaged, oppressed, hurting and lonely - particularly those who trust Him. If you feel alone in this world, you can ask God, as your Father in Heaven, to put you under his special care and protection. If you don't believe us, just ask Belém!
